

1. Formal – formal letters are more standardized and more formal than informal letters. They are usually written on letterhead paper and are addressed to a specific person or organization. They are often used in business and government settings.

2. Informal – informal letters are more personal and less formal than formal letters. They are usually written on plain paper and are addressed to a specific person. They are often used in personal and social settings.

3. Semi-formal – semi-formal letters are a middle ground between formal and informal letters. They are usually written on plain paper and are addressed to a specific person or organization. They are often used in business and government settings.

4. Business – business letters are a type of formal letter used in the workplace. They are usually written on letterhead paper and are addressed to a specific person or organization. They are often used in business and government settings.

5. Personal – personal letters are a type of informal letter used in personal and social settings. They are usually written on plain paper and are addressed to a specific person. They are often used in personal and social settings.

6. Legal – legal letters are a type of formal letter used in the legal system. They are usually written on letterhead paper and are addressed to a specific person or organization. They are often used in business and government settings.

7. Academic – academic letters are a type of formal letter used in the academic world. They are usually written on letterhead paper and are addressed to a specific person or organization. They are often used in business and government settings.

8. Medical – medical letters are a type of formal letter used in the medical field. They are usually written on letterhead paper and are addressed to a specific person or organization. They are often used in business and government settings.

9. Financial – financial letters are a type of formal letter used in the financial industry. They are usually written on letterhead paper and are addressed to a specific person or organization. They are often used in business and government settings.

10. Government – government letters are a type of formal letter used in the government sector. They are usually written on letterhead paper and are addressed to a specific person or organization. They are often used in business and government settings.

PARKING COUNT
SOUTH AREA:
SURFACE	468
- ADA	11
- ADA (VAN)	2
GARAGE	27
- ADA (VAN)	1
SOUTH TOTAL	495
NORTH AREA:
SURFACE	20
GARAGE	16
NORTH TOTAL	36
TOTAL PARKING:	531

[illegible]